Doctoral candidates in ethics, political philosophy, the philosophy of culture, aesthetics, and philosophy in Eastern Europe and Russia, have the possibility of taking part in three to four lectures per semester by external lecturers. For postgraduates preparing a Master's degree or PhD, a one-day colloquium is organised towards the end of each semester at which advanced and doctoral students have the occasion to present and discuss their research with one another and the professors in attendance. Thesis supervision principally takes the form of personal tutoring by professors and other members of the teaching staff who are attentive to the pluralism of methods and issues. Research themes vary widely, including the history of theoretical and practical philosophy of the modern era, the philosophy of culture, aesthetics, and philosophical currents in Eastern Europe and Russia, as well as political philosophy and ethics.
