Access to further studies
Ph.D.

The Master's programme in Eastern European Studies is a multilingual interfaculty, interuniversity programme offered by the Universities of Fribourg and Berne. The programme is known for its diversity of languages, cultures, ethnics, and religions. Students acquire the necessary linguistic, specialist, and methodological competences to look at Eastern Europe in its full facets. The programme is focused on the 20th and 21st centuries, and place them in their political, social, historical, and cultural context.

Ph.D.

The programme of studies provides students with knowledge of:
- Political, historical, social, literary and cultural issues of Eastern European countries and regions in the 20th and 21st centuries;
- The theories and history of Eastern European studies;
- Relevant methods of Eastern European research.

Fribourg profile
This programme provides students with the competences to work on academic questions independently: the aim is to enable them to carry out skilled and complex tasks in research, business, and the public sector. Graduates of this programme are familiar with the problems of the region, and are capable of analysing them. They obtain specialist knowledge and linguistic skills which qualify them for employment in areas such as the diplomatic service, international organisations, journalism, non-governmental organisations, and commercial enterprises operating in Eastern Europe, etc.

Profile of the study programme
The Master's programme in Eastern European Studies is a multilingual interfaculty, interuniversity programme. Students attend classes at both universities. Seminars are also regularly held by researchers from Eastern European countries. The syllabus consists of lectures on contemporary history, cultural studies (Slavic studies and cultural philosophy), political science and social anthropology. The focus is on the 20th century and on current issues. Students learn at least one of the region's languages during their course of study. The Interfaculty Institute for Central and Eastern Europe at the University of Fribourg has numerous contacts to lecturers and researchers from the region. The Institute's numerous research projects and mandates give students ample opportunity to put what they have learned into practice.

Admission
Master's degree programmes are built on the knowledge and abilities that were acquired when obtaining a Bachelor’s degree.
Holders of a Bachelor's degree awarded from a Swiss university can be admitted to a Master's degree programme within the corresponding branch of studies (requires the acquisition of minimum 60 ECTS credits at Bachelor level in the corresponding discipline) without any additional requirements. The same applies to holders of a Bachelor's degree awarded by a foreign university, provided that the Bachelor's degree is recognised and considered equivalent by the University of Fribourg.

Holders of a Bachelor's degree awarded from a Swiss university or holders of a Bachelor's degree awarded by a foreign university, provided that the Bachelor's degree is recognised and considered equivalent by the University of Fribourg, can be admitted to a Master's degree programme within another discipline with prerequisites (must be successfully completed before starting the Master's degree programme) or additional requirements (can be completed during the Master's degree programme). According to existing agreements, holders of a Bachelor's degree awarded from a Swiss university of applied sciences can also be admitted with prerequisites or additional requirements.

The respective conditions of admission for each Master's degree programme are reserved.

Alternatives

Also offered as a minor study programme and as a specialisation programme (30 ECTS credits).
