This Bachelor programme qualifies students for the Master programme Sociology, Social Policy, Social Work.

The special feature of the Fribourg programme is that it teaches students the basic theoretical and methodological knowledge (concepts, theories, classic authors, philosophy of science) while providing broad training in quantitative and qualitative methods. At the same time, this is placed in the context of current social problems and the ensuing debates. The programme includes an application-oriented introduction to methods of empirical social research and practical exercises;

The objective of the Sociology programme is to enable students to conduct their own research into social issues and to acquire the professional skills which are required in their selected fields of application in an academic or professional environment;

The programme gives students a sound understanding of political, economic and cultural institutions in Switzerland and abroad.

The Bachelor's and Master's degrees in Sociology provide the theoretical and conceptual tools required for (executive) posts in public and private organisations, and for research and teaching. It also equips students for posts in public administration bodies involving conceptual tasks, notably in the social services.
