The University of Fribourg specialises in classical studies and offers a Master of Arts in Languages and Literatures: Classics. The program broadens students' Latin and Greek language skills and enhances their knowledge of the culture and literature of classical antiquity. It further encompasses the lasting influence of this heritage through the centuries of Late Antiquity, the Byzantine period, the Middle Ages, and the Renaissance. This program provides students with the opportunity to learn the basics of scientific research and hands-on training in papyrology, palaeography, codicology, and scholarly editing. In line with University of Fribourg's language policy, Classics students have the possibility of taking their courses in two languages (French and German).

Learning outcomes and career openings
On completing their course, students will have acquired the ability to translate a Greek or Latin text, analyse it grammatically and stylistically, place it in its literary, historical, and cultural context and establish links with modern literature. For a given problem, they will have acquired the methodological skills allowing them to draw up a pertinent bibliography, search for sources, analyse them critically and in detail, put forward a summary of the issue and give an oral or written presentation of the results of their research. Thanks to their practical training, they will be capable of working on original documents (papyri, manuscripts, etc.) and producing a scholarly edition.

The principal career openings for Classics students:
- Teaching Latin and Greek at secondary school level I and II;
- An academic or scientific career in classical studies;
- Public administration and cultural policy;
- Administrative posts in scientific bodies;
- Private sector (human resources).

Studies organisation
Structure of studies
90 ECTS credits + 30 ECTS credits as an option in a minor study programme freely chosen, 3-4 semesters

Curriculum
http://studies.unifr.ch/go/9E-Ps (French)
http://studies.unifr.ch/go/XVD (German)

Comments
The master programmes Latin Studies and Greek Studies are offered as minor study programmes (30 ECTS credits).

Admission
http://studies.unifr.ch/enmaster/lang/classics

The University of Fribourg specialises in classical studies and offers a Master of Arts in Languages and Literatures: Classics. The program broadens students' Latin and Greek language skills and enhances their knowledge of the culture and literature of classical antiquity. It further encompasses the lasting influence of this heritage through the centuries of Late Antiquity, the Byzantine period, the Middle Ages, and the Renaissance. This program provides students with the opportunity to learn the basics of scientific research and hands-on training in papyrology, palaeography, codicology, and scholarly editing. In line with University of Fribourg's language policy, Classics students have the possibility of taking their courses in two languages (French and German).

Learning outcomes and career openings
On completing their course, students will have acquired the ability to translate a Greek or Latin text, analyse it grammatically and stylistically, place it in its literary, historical, and cultural context and establish links with modern literature. For a given problem, they will have acquired the methodological skills allowing them to draw up a pertinent bibliography, search for sources, analyse them critically and in detail, put forward a summary of the issue and give an oral or written presentation of the results of their research. Thanks to their practical training, they will be capable of working on original documents (papyri, manuscripts, etc.) and producing a scholarly edition.

The principal career openings for Classics students:
- Teaching Latin and Greek at secondary school level I and II;
- An academic or scientific career in classical studies;
- Public administration and cultural policy;
- Administrative posts in scientific bodies;
- Private sector (human resources).

Studies organisation
Structure of studies
90 ECTS credits + 30 ECTS credits as an option in a minor study programme freely chosen, 3-4 semesters

Curriculum
http://studies.unifr.ch/go/9E-Ps (French)
http://studies.unifr.ch/go/XVD (German)

Comments
The master programmes Latin Studies and Greek Studies are offered as minor study programmes (30 ECTS credits).

Admission
http://studies.unifr.ch/enmaster/lang/classics

The University of Fribourg specialises in classical studies and offers a Master of Arts in Languages and Literatures: Classics. The program broadens students' Latin and Greek language skills and enhances their knowledge of the culture and literature of classical antiquity. It further encompasses the lasting influence of this heritage through the centuries of Late Antiquity, the Byzantine period, the Middle Ages, and the Renaissance. This program provides students with the opportunity to learn the basics of scientific research and hands-on training in papyrology, palaeography, codicology, and scholarly editing. In line with University of Fribourg's language policy, Classics students have the possibility of taking their courses in two languages (French and German).

Learning outcomes and career openings
On completing their course, students will have acquired the ability to translate a Greek or Latin text, analyse it grammatically and stylistically, place it in its literary, historical, and cultural context and establish links with modern literature. For a given problem, they will have acquired the methodological skills allowing them to draw up a pertinent bibliography, search for sources, analyse them critically and in detail, put forward a summary of the issue and give an oral or written presentation of the results of their research. Thanks to their practical training, they will be capable of working on original documents (papyri, manuscripts, etc.) and producing a scholarly edition.

The principal career openings for Classics students:
- Teaching Latin and Greek at secondary school level I and II;
- An academic or scientific career in classical studies;
- Public administration and cultural policy;
- Administrative posts in scientific bodies;
- Private sector (human resources).

Studies organisation
Structure of studies
90 ECTS credits + 30 ECTS credits as an option in a minor study programme freely chosen, 3-4 semesters

Curriculum
http://studies.unifr.ch/go/9E-Ps (French)
http://studies.unifr.ch/go/XVD (German)

Comments
The master programmes Latin Studies and Greek Studies are offered as minor study programmes (30 ECTS credits).

Admission
http://studies.unifr.ch/enmaster/lang/classics

The University of Fribourg specialises in classical studies and offers a Master of Arts in Languages and Literatures: Classics. The program broadens students' Latin and Greek language skills and enhances their knowledge of the culture and literature of classical antiquity. It further encompasses the lasting influence of this heritage through the centuries of Late Antiquity, the Byzantine period, the Middle Ages, and the Renaissance. This program provides students with the opportunity to learn the basics of scientific research and hands-on training in papyrology, palaeography, codicology, and scholarly editing. In line with University of Fribourg's language policy, Classics students have the possibility of taking their courses in two languages (French and German).

Learning outcomes and career openings
On completing their course, students will have acquired the ability to translate a Greek or Latin text, analyse it grammatically and stylistically, place it in its literary, historical, and cultural context and establish links with modern literature. For a given problem, they will have acquired the methodological skills allowing them to draw up a pertinent bibliography, search for sources, analyse them critically and in detail, put forward a summary of the issue and give an oral or written presentation of the results of their research. Thanks to their practical training, they will be capable of working on original documents (papyri, manuscripts, etc.) and producing a scholarly edition.

The principal career openings for Classics students:
- Teaching Latin and Greek at secondary school level I and II;
- An academic or scientific career in classical studies;
- Public administration and cultural policy;
- Administrative posts in scientific bodies;
- Private sector (human resources).

Studies organisation
Structure of studies
90 ECTS credits + 30 ECTS credits as an option in a minor study programme freely chosen, 3-4 semesters

Curriculum
http://studies.unifr.ch/go/9E-Ps (French)
http://studies.unifr.ch/go/XVD (German)

Comments
The master programmes Latin Studies and Greek Studies are offered as minor study programmes (30 ECTS credits).

Admission
http://studies.unifr.ch/enmaster/lang/classics

The University of Fribourg specialises in classical studies and offers a Master of Arts in Languages and Literatures: Classics. The program broadens students' Latin and Greek language skills and enhances their knowledge of the culture and literature of classical antiquity. It further encompasses the lasting influence of this heritage through the centuries of Late Antiquity, the Byzantine period, the Middle Ages, and the Renaissance. This program provides students with the opportunity to learn the basics of scientific research and hands-on training in papyrology, palaeography, codicology, and scholarly editing. In line with University of Fribourg's language policy, Classics students have the possibility of taking their courses in two languages (French and German).

Learning outcomes and career openings
On completing their course, students will have acquired the ability to translate a Greek or Latin text, analyse it grammatically and stylistically, place it in its literary, historical, and cultural context and establish links with modern literature. For a given problem, they will have acquired the methodological skills allowing them to draw up a pertinent bibliography, search for sources, analyse them critically and in detail, put forward a summary of the issue and give an oral or written presentation of the results of their research. Thanks to their practical training, they will be capable of working on original documents (papyri, manuscripts, etc.) and producing a scholarly edition.

The principal career openings for Classics students:
- Teaching Latin and Greek at secondary school level I and II;
- An academic or scientific career in classical studies;
- Public administration and cultural policy;
- Administrative posts in scientific bodies;
- Private sector (human resources).

Studies organisation
Structure of studies
90 ECTS credits + 30 ECTS credits as an option in a minor study programme freely chosen, 3-4 semesters

Curriculum
http://studies.unifr.ch/go/9E-Ps (French)
http://studies.unifr.ch/go/XVD (German)

Comments
The master programmes Latin Studies and Greek Studies are offered as minor study programmes (30 ECTS credits).

Admission
http://studies.unifr.ch/enmaster/lang/classics

The University of Fribourg specialises in classical studies and offers a Master of Arts in Languages and Literatures: Classics. The program broadens students' Latin and Greek language skills and enhances their knowledge of the culture and literature of classical antiquity. It further encompasses the lasting influence of this heritage through the centuries of Late Antiquity, the Byzantine period, the Middle Ages, and the Renaissance. This program provides students with the opportunity to learn the basics of scientific research and hands-on training in papyrology, palaeography, codicology, and scholarly editing. In line with University of Fribourg's language policy, Classics students have the possibility of taking their courses in two languages (French and German).

Learning outcomes and career openings
On completing their course, students will have acquired the ability to translate a Greek or Latin text, analyse it grammatically and stylistically, place it in its literary, historical, and cultural context and establish links with modern literature. For a given problem, they will have acquired the methodological skills allowing them to draw up a pertinent bibliography, search for sources, analyse them critically and in detail, put forward a summary of the issue and give an oral or written presentation of the results of their research. Thanks to their practical training, they will be capable of working on original documents (papyri, manuscripts, etc.) and producing a scholarly edition.

The principal career openings for Classics students:
- Teaching Latin and Greek at secondary school level I and II;
- An academic or scientific career in classical studies;
- Public administration and cultural policy;
- Administrative posts in scientific bodies;
- Private sector (human resources).

Studies organisation
Structure of studies
90 ECTS credits + 30 ECTS credits as an option in a minor study programme freely chosen, 3-4 semesters

Curriculum
http://studies.unifr.ch/go/9E-Ps (French)
http://studies.unifr.ch/go/XVD (German)

Comments
The master programmes Latin Studies and Greek Studies are offered as minor study programmes (30 ECTS credits).

Admission
http://studies.unifr.ch/enmaster/lang/classics
Master's degree programmes are built on the knowledge and abilities that were acquired when obtaining a bachelor's degree.

Holders of a bachelor's degree awarded by a Swiss university are admitted to a master's degree programme without any preconditions if they have earned 60 or 90 ECTS credits – depending on the chosen master's degree programme – within the corresponding discipline. However, additional requirements can be required. The same applies to holders of a bachelor's degree awarded by a foreign university, provided that the bachelor's degree is recognised and considered equivalent by the University of Fribourg.

Holders of a bachelor's degree awarded by a Swiss or a foreign university, provided that the bachelor's degree is recognised and considered equivalent by the University of Fribourg, who do not fulfil this condition can be admitted to a master's degree programme with preconditions (which must be successfully completed before starting the master's degree programme) and/or additional requirements (which can be completed during the master's degree programme). The preconditions and/or additional requirements may not exceed 60 ECTS credits in total. The same applies to holders of a bachelor's degree awarded by a Swiss university of applied sciences, according to existing agreements.

The respective conditions of admission for each master's degree programme are reserved.

Contact

Faculty of Humanities
Department of Classics
Prof. Thomas Schmidt
thomas.schmidt@unifr.ch
http://studies.unifr.ch/go/fr-classics (French)
http://studies.unifr.ch/go/de-classics (German)